INTRODUCTION

Scope of the volume

“The First Wave” is a discography of all known recordings which come within the criteria for inclusion, which means rock & pop recordings [ie. those aimed primarily at a “teen” market] made in Australia or by Australians overseas between 1955 and 1963. The cut-off date and the title are indicative of a focus on the pre-Beatles period of popular music.

Over 2000 recordings from the early years of Australian popular music are documented, and those items held by the National Film & Sound Archive are marked so as to facilitate access to this material. Where possible, entries include details such as composer credits which have not previously been available. Also included are details of television and newsreel footage held by the Archive which relate to this subject. This includes episodes of “Six O’Clock Rock”, “The Johnny O’Keefe Show”, and other programmes aimed at the “teen” market during the period covered by the discography.

There are indexes of all tune titles and artists.

The compiler

Ross Laird is on the staff of the National Film & Sound Archive in Canberra. He has a particular interest in the early history of popular music, and in the dissemination of popular music via the medium of recorded sound. This interest has involved considerable research into the evolution of the record industries in the U.S., Britain and Australia.

He has published “A Discography of Popular Music Recorded in Australia and by Australians Overseas, 1924-1950” (available from the author), and has had several discographies published in the U.S. by Greenwood Press (“Tantalizing Tingles” and “Moanin’ Low”). A multi-volume discography of Brunswick records will be published by Greenwood Press in 1999.

His history of how the record industry was established in Australia in the 1920s (titled “Sound Beginnings”) will also be published by Currency Press in 1999. This volume will include a significant quantity of material from contemporary sources on the history and development of the record industry in Australia, as well as on the social context and business practice of the period.

How to access collection material

Material from the NFSA Collection can be made available for viewing or listening at any of our collection access centres. Items can be loaned or copied for off-site access with permission of third party copyright owners or agreement of the NFSA.

The NFSA does not usually hold the copyright for the works in its collection, so clearing the right to use material and seeking permission from the copyright holder will be the responsibility of whoever wishes to use the material. Indigenous material is made available in accordance with NFSA's Indigenous protocols.

Copying and loan services are prioritised for the media production sectors and for scholarly and educational interests. We are unable to provide copies or loans of collection items for personal use unless a direct personal connection such as an appearance or performance by a family member can be established.

WARREN CARR

Pianist who played with John Konrad's Kaydets (1960) and in Johnny O'Keefe's backing group. Despite many recordings for Leedon under his own name from 1961 to 1964, they are mostly in what has been described as "honky tonk party piano style" rather than anything resembling rock music. One possible exception is "Warren Carr Plays Johnny O'Keefe" (Leedon EP LX10426).

	Closing theme	--
Note: Leedon LP LL30739 is titled "The Johnny O'Keefe Show: starring Johnny O'Keefe and friends" (and this title suggests that the cuts on this album are live recordings, rather than studio versions). It presumably features other artists besides Johnny O'Keefe (including Barry Stanton, The Crescents, Paul Wayne, Warren Carr, Ian Crawford, Warren Williams, The Fauns, and Lonnie Lee -- all of whom recorded at least one of the above titles). It was reissued as Callender R91241. Further details are unknown.

Let's have a party -- *

Long Tall Sally -- *

Hound dog -- *

Rock it up -- *

Rock it up -- *

Note: This disc was apparently a test or rehearsal recording for the Prestophone Olympic release shown below. Note the several different versions of "Rock it up" which was the only one of the titles on the above recording to be included on the EP.

Sydney, early 1958
 MX106162 Too much Prestophone Olympic *
 Jenny, Jenny -- *
 MX106163 Jailhouse rock -- *
 Rock it up -- *

Note: The Prestophone Olympic EP is un-numbered and plays at 33 1/3 rpm. Despite published claims that The Stone-Agers could be "the first Australian band to record a rock and roll song" the date of 1956 which has previously been suggested for this recording is not correct and there are many earlier Australian rock & roll recordings!
